She Bears Bionics make her super

She Chameleoness's bionic enhancements, specifically the bionic polar bear she stole, make her super by granting her the bear's enhanced physical and mental capabilities far beyond normal limits. The bionic polar bear's physiology includes traits such as immense strength, endurance, and resilience typical of polar bears, but amplified through illegal mind-altering drugs, steroids, and advanced technology, making it nearly invincible and invulnerable[1] [2]. This supercharged bear, under She Chameleoness's control (or initially under her disguise as Captbike), provides her with overwhelming power to commit high-level crimes and evade capture.

In essence, the combination of the bear's natural ursine physiology—such as powerful muscles, thick insulating fur, and survival adaptations to extreme cold—with bionic enhancements and illicit substances makes She Chameleoness's ally extraordinarily formidable and gives her a significant advantage in combat and criminal endeavors[1] [2]. However, her reliance on this enhanced bear also leads to vulnerability when her bi-polar condition causes her to lose control, ultimately requiring intervention by Captbike and Angeloria.

Thus, She Chameleoness's "super" status is directly tied to the bionic polar bear's augmented ursine physiology combined with illegal enhancements that elevate her threat level and capabilities dramatically[1] [2].
